One of the things that the Matisa brand has put on its agenda is the use of high-quality and first-class raw materials to produce a variety of products, which it has achieved with the benefit of expert forces and up-to-date and advanced technology, and a high share in the domestic market and has gained export

Sanitary faucets have different types in terms of gender, appearance and function. One of the most important points when buying faucets is its material. Sanitary faucets are made of two types of brass or dry lead alloys, and the coating that is placed on it causes a difference in appearance.

The material of brass alloys is better than the dry lead type because the lead type corrodes over time and is not approved in terms of health. The cover of faucets or the external cover is usually made of copper, brass, steel or bronze, the most popular type of which is steel.

Sanitary faucets are designed in different types, the most famous of which are:
Pedal valves
Lever valves
Electronic valves (optical)
Urinal valve.
